very thing. Of course the story was promptly refuted. Senator Fairbanks had not only written Senator Kearns to join him in the trip through the State, but he wired him from Carson, Nev. to do so. It was not convenient to go beyond Ogden. But Utah's senior Senator was there and was warmly greeted.

Not content with this impropriety, the sending of the dispatch to the newspapers. Smoot attempted to keep so in range of the visitor that he might prevent Senator Fairbanks from being reached by those not friendly to him. But his purpose failed as soon as the plans were observed. It worked without difficulty until a new Richmond in the person of Utah's senior Senator came into the field. Then it went to pieces.

Senator Kearns, Senator Fairbanks and Senator Kearns, Senator Fairbanks and Senator Dolliver are and for a long time have been very intimate friends. The Indianan and the Iowan showed Senator Kearns such marked attention from the time they met that the measip plans of Utah's apostolic boss and party-wrecker went up in thin air.

Senator Fairbanks was closeted with Senator Kearns for a long while at Ogden, but their interview was such as two Senators of the United States should be. There was no reference at that time to matters of local character save the expression by Senator Fairbanks of mortification that any one would be so descicable as to wire a statement calculated to interfere with a long friendship.

At this meeting Senator Fairbanks renewed his request that Senator Kearns into the senator Kearns in that Senator Kearns into the senator Kearns in the senator Fairbanks renewed his request that Senator Kearns into the senator Kearns in the senator Kearns in the senator Fairbanks renewed his request that Senator Kearns in the senator Kearns in the

At this meeting Senator Fairbanks renewed his request that Senator Kearns Join him on the morrow and remain with him as long as possible. This Senator Kearns agreed to do.

He was Senator Fairbanks's guest on the special until it arrived in this city. On the way down from Ogden it was observed that Senator Fairbanks and Senator Kearns were in close communion in the candidate's part of the private car and Senator Kearns were in close communion in the candidate's part of the private car and Senator Smett unlavited, so far as could be noted, made himself conspicuous as a "butter-in." Directly Mr. Fairbanks, who was anxious to make some preparations for his speech at the Theater and desired to be alone for a few moments, withdrew to the candidate's stateroom, and the apostle Senator had the audacity to try to get in there, rappling on the door several times.

Interview.

It was a shameless display of the apostolle hose's gall, and, although Senator Fairbanks is too much of a gentleman to give heed to the incident, much less to discuss it with any one, he, no doubt, was approved.

Senator Fairbanks came into Utah as the representative of his party. He treated Senator Smoot with marked cour-tesy. He played no offensive favors. He is too broad to be knowingly drawn into any local troubles. And especially be-tween colleagues in the Senate. None but a blunderbuss or a political nondescript would attempt to so involve him.

nondescript would attempt to so involve him. On the arrival of the party in Salt Lake Senator Fairbanks, the Utah Senators and John C. Cutler took carriage togeth-er, Senator Kearns riding beside the in-dianan. short drive, saying he desired to call on Mrs Kearns for a brief visit to the Kearns home.

Even at this hour Senator Smoot followed the two out of the Theater and saw them drive away together. He then returned to his place on the stage and remained until the close of the meeting. Senator Fairbanks was driven from the Kearns home to the Knutsford, where H. E. Booth had arranged a luncheon. Senator Kearns then prepared to accompany Senator Fairbanks on his special car eastward. Senator Fairbanks on his special car eastward. Senator Fairbanks insisted that Senator Kearns go as far East as Chicago, but this Senator Kearns, on account of business engagements, could not agree to do. Senator Fairbanks being desirous of getting a full understanding of local conditions as they exist at the present time in Utah, then asked the Senator fir he could not remain with the party for two or three days at least, or In any eventing enough to give him a full and complete idea of the political situation of this lete idea of the political situation of this

After leaving Senator Fairbanks some-where in the East, Senator Kearns will go to New York and other points on a bust-ness mission.

This lengthy mention of the work of Smoot and his henchmen in Utah would not have been made did the Senator or some one in his party not circulate the story that Senator Kearns had been snubbed. This called forth the foregoing statement. It is justified by the scurry efforts of the men who set out to humilitate Senator Kearns at the expense of Senator Fairbanks and the National Administration.

GUESTS OF PRESIDENT.

Prominent New Yorkers Talk Over Situation With Roosevelt. WASHINGTON, Oct. 7 .- Former Lieut.

Gov. Timothy L. Woodruff of New York and William Berri, proprietor of the Brooklyn Standard-Union, were guests of President Roosevelt at luncheon today. Mr. Woodruff came to Washington by invitation of the President.

As he was leaving the White House Mr. Woodruff said to a representative of the Associated Press: "I had a very pleasant and satisfactory conversation with President Roosevelt. It would not be quite proper for me to discuss for publication the details of our conference, but I may say that it related to the general political situation, with particular reference to that in New York State.

"Yes," he continued in response to a question, "I think there is no doubt that President Roosevelt will carry New York by a substantial plurality, and I told him so. There is no disguising the fact, however, that a sharp contest is being made on the Republican State ticket, but I am entirely hopeful as to the result."

The subject of the Postmaster-General-ship was not mentioned at the conference. Gov. Timothy L. Woodruff of New York

QUALITIES OF THE CANDIDATES

Senator Dolliver Makes Comparison.

Roosevelt a Statesman Who Can Safely Guide Ship of State.

Parker's Fame, if Such It Be, Rests Entirely Upon a Tele-

In his address which captured the big audience in the Salt Lake Theater, Scn-ator Dolliver of Iowa compared the two candidates, Roosevelt and Parker. He spoke as follows:

Senator Dolliver's Address.

Senator Dolliver's Address.

Ladies and Gentlemen—It is a very great pieasure to me to have the opportunity of attending this political meeting, although I have made every reasonable effort to get out of the responsibility of addressing you. And that because I have had rather an arduous experience during the last few weeks, and I very much prefer that you should hear my colleague and friend, because I know he would entertain you better than anybody else. (Cries of "Go ahead" from the auddence.) Of course, I am going shead Judge Smith, however, omitted from his speech something that I expected he would say to you. I think you would like the Judge all the more had you heard what he had to say about the ploneers of Utah at Ogden fast night. The Judge claims to take a personal interest in this section of the country, going so far as to claim that he lives in the same town where the early settlers of Utah spent a year planting their harvests and gathering their crops. The Judge has since, in private conversation, claimed that he was there and saw it done, and even has gone so far as to intimate that he carried water to the harvest hands.

Democrats Joined to Idols.

Democrats Joined to Idols

Democrats Joined to Idols.

Now, I do not know that it is important for anybody to talk politics in the Rocky mountain country this year. I have studied the situation with a great deal of care, and I have made up my mind that anybody whose mental faculties are in fairly good state, who has lived through the experience of the last eight years without losing interest in the Democratic party, is joined to his idols and according to the Scriptures, ought to be let alone. The Lord has after all only one way of teaching men and nations, and that is to send them along the high-ways and the main road of experience and let everybody sweat it out for himself.

No Quarrel About Politics.

One man cannot be guided very much by the experience of another, and is seldom warned by the experience of another. One generation is seldom guided by the experience of another one generation is seldom guided by the experience of another generation, except when we have gone through such business as we have had in the United States since that defeat of Harrison and the election of Cleveland. Nevertheless, I am not here for the purpose of quarreling with anybody about politics.

Inherit Our Politics.

We inherit our politics very much as we inherit our religion, but hold tighter to the political faith. Therefore, we are not always right in our convictions. We like the Republican party, however, because it has bound to it a long record of rational achievements to the Americans in all their interests which concern the great material wealth of all homes and firefiles. The Republican party is no experiment.

Knew Republican Candidate. We have nominated a man for President because we had been introduced to him prior to his candidacy for that office. I have known him for twenty years. He is the only man born in New York city that was ever heard of and that amounted to anything, and he got out of town just as quick as he could.

Log Cabin in West.

Log Cabin in West.

As I have gone up and down these valleys I have seen a thing or two down in this intermountain country. I have seen the log house. When we were out on the edge of the State of Montana I had pointed out the log house where Theodore Roosevelt became a ranchman more than twenty years ago. Since I came to this town a man has shown me the pic ture of the log house where was born our next Vice-President. Here we have a President also who, while not born in the log house, got into one just as quick as he could.

Cannot Identify Parker

Cannot Identify Parker.

Now, I don't know what you folks think of Judge Parker out here (Cries of 'Not much; never heard of him," I will confess to you that, while I am a diligent reader of newspapers and have been all my life. I have not been able to locate him since. I know where he lives although I don't know how to pronounce it. I know that he is a Judge, although I never heard of the grantees of modern authority being turned out of their way. I have heard him called a sage, but my idea of a sage lifters from his.

Parker a Side Issue.

Parker a Side Issue.

The Democrats expect to make Roose-velt the Issue of this campaign. Now, we have got to make Parker a little side Issue in the campaign. Now, they can go along telling lies about Roossveit and we will go along telling the truth about Parker. So here is his letter of acceptance, in order that we may have a very correct and well-jointed view of what the real issue of this campaign is

Parker at Forks of Road.

Parker at Forks of Road.

I am going to read it to you from the luminous pen of the Democratic party.
"The people of the United States stand at the parting of the ways.

Well, I don't wonder at that, because we have not. We have had a part of the way in the United States. We had a parting of the ways in 1856 and a large number went out of the road and followed what I believe he calls a will-o-the-wisp. I advise you not to do that, because I know that the Democratic party would lead you into a hole again.

Silver Question.

They (the Democratic party) said you were for free silver. It was nobody's business what your views on silver were, for if they were wrong you could get over it. I judge that you have. But, whether you have or have not, your riends of the Democratic party have not. I hate to see a man rubbing it in on his friends. Democratic claim that you were not only wrong in your at tention to Mr. Bryan, but they claim must you were crazy—because Grover Cleveland says that the Democratic party is now becoming safe and sane. Cheerful thing to look forward to.

Admissions of Democracy.

Roosevelt as a Soldier. Roosevelt as a Soldier.

They say that President Roosevelt is a man of war and sulisted to defend his country, and so did multiplied thousands and two batteries that went from this city and from other towns in Utah. Roosevelt did enlist in the war. I got so enthusiastic myself that I wanted to go. I went to see the Presilent. He looked me over carefully and said he would see me the next day. I went back again and he said he thought it over and said I did not know enough to be a military offeer and was too fat for a private, and advised me to stay in the House of Representatives.

Has Good Advisors.

Now, they say that Roosevelt always acts upon his own judgment and upon his own counsel, Why, the greatest thing about him is that while he is a man of his own convictions he has been wise enough to keep close by his side the close counsellors of William McKinley, among them that illustrious statesman and diplomat, John Hay.

I have followed the business of the American people at short range for twelve years, farming a little in the daytime and meditating on the welfare of the country at night. Mighty few things you can know from hearing.

History Past Ten Years

History Past Ten Years.

History Past Ten Years.

I know exactly what has happened to American business in the last ten years. I don't much care for the troubles of the past. I don't claim to know about those of 1857 or 1857, don't claim to know much about the panic of 1873, but there is one trouble I claim to know all about and that is the little trouble that overtook us in 1893. I saw the business welfare of eighty millions of my countrymen go into a rat hole and I never took my eyes off the hole until I saw it coming out. They can not fool me on the cause or effect.

Trouble in 1893. Trouble in 1893.

But in 1893 we got into the worst finan ctal trouble that we had ever seen or heard of before or since. At no time could matters have been any worse. At those matters have been any worse. At those times a lot of people got in front of a bank and stayed there until every one was paid or the bank suspended. Some had mency coming to them, but could not get it. It was a happy condition of things one could not get into debt or get out if he was in. Paralysis affecting everything the like of which was never seen in the history of the United States. Senator Fairbanks has given you some statistics on the tariff question. We are not only seeking to grow in our domestic commerce and business, but we expand somewhat.

Tribute to Leaders.

I have pinned my faith in the Republican party because it has been faithful in the past; it has not only been faithful abroad, but has opened a new outlook for the people of the United States among the nations of the world. Nor do I believe among the great names that are enshrined in the history there are two who will outshine the names of present leaders, Theodore Roosevelt and Charles W. Fairbanks.

The people of Ogden are just beginning to settle down to the conviction that Senator Frank J. Cannon was in deadly earnest when he declared himself with the American party. Cannon has a wonderful power over the people of Weber county, and the local Democracy is correspondingly depressed. One prominent Democrat said today that the party had had high hopes of carrying Weber county, if not the State that Cannon was at the head of the only Democratic paper in the county and was recognized as the leading Democrat in northern Utah, and that the party depended upon his elequence and his paper to carry Weber county, but now he had aligned himself with the American party, he had no hopes of winning.
